

Be Still

When I was much younger, I really wanted to be, among other things, a great golf player. My reflexes were fast, but no matter how hard I tried, I couldn't get the club to connect with the ball at the sweet spot. There was a time I tried very hard to improve, and spent a lot of time at the driving range. The harder I tried to make the right connection, the worse my game became. I needed a coach, and I needed to relax and let the club do the work. Life, on the other hand, is not a game, but sometimes we try too hard and not let God do His work in matters that mean most to us. Don't make that mistake; serious damage can result. God can do more through us than we ever can.

"Be still and know that I am God," Psalm 46:10 KJV
