

Let It Go!

One of the small, constant, less-than-positive distractions (and there aren't many) of vacations, is baggage. It does not even have to be heavy - what we need, put in a suitcase, is by definition awkward and eats up more trunk space than an elephant (get the pun, funny? okay). That's for those of us who can't compete in Summer Olympics in track and field events. Whether we're on vacation with baggage or we're trying our best to win the 100 meter dash in Rio, we have baggage - our past sins we don't forget, or our present ones for which we need to ask forgiveness, we tug along with us, slows us down to no end, and God means for us to just let go. Yes, if we've asked for forgiveness, just let it go! Let it go! The very One, Christ the Savior, who could prosecute to no end is crying out for you to repent and then let it go! The joy that waits for us at the finish line God provides and is more than enough reason to drop what we've been dragging along, then run free for all we're worth in faith and service. Finish that race, finish your life strong, so that we can win the prize in Christ Jesus - eternal life. You can do it.
