

Level With Me God!

I think we've all been to a restaurant where the table is not level and constantly shifts from one corner to the next. It makes for interesting eating with family and friends, especially if cutting with knives are involved. Everything shifts, some people must stop eating for a second, and full glasses of water may even splash water on the table. That's when you grab a napkin or something and stick it under the offending leg that made the table uneven; peace is restored, everyone's more at ease, and the food may even taste better because you can pay attention to it. The table just needs to be level. In Isaiah 26:7, we have a song about how we need to have faith in God's protection, and the Psalmist is asking God to make the path of the righteous level. Life has too many dangers that work best when on a tilt, when all can come crashing to the ground, and much is lost or must be restored. Be righteous people by accepting God's protection; by living a life that reflects the will of His Son, Jesus Christ, born among us so that we may be forgiven and have eternal life - such are the matters we want to keep level, and very much on the table, in our lives.
